

ABSTRACT

A line attenuation device for monomode fibres having at least one attenuating element with at least one graded-index multimode fibre section placed between two monomode fibres and coupled to at least one coreless silica fibre section.